

1999

2000
DECEMBER

Congress passes a $100 million appropriation to fund the National Digital Information Infrastructure and Preservation Program (NDIIPP). Congress releases $5 million for initial planning.

Congress approves NDIIPP plan and releases another $20 million. The remaining $75 million from Congress must be matched dollar-for-dollar from non-federal, in-kind or cash contributions.

2003
JANUARY

First $1 million investment matched 1:1 in preservation architecture to Old Dominion, Johns Hopkins, Stanford and Harvard universities to explore strategies for the exchange, transfer and preservation of digital archives.

2004
JUNE

Preservation Partnerships to collect and preserve born-digital content : awards of $13.9 million matched 1:1 to eight consortia comprising 36 institutions.

2004
SEPTEMBER

The LC and National Science Foundation award 10 university teams a total of $3 million to undertake pioneering research to support the long-term management of digital information.

2005
MAY

NDIIPP makes $3 million matched 1:1 grant award for the development of Portico, a nonprofit electronic archiving service.

2005
OCTOBER

Library makes $700,000 award matched 1:1 to Stanford University to collaborate on development of NDIIPP technical architecture.

2006
JUNE

NDIIPP ready to award over $13 million to 35 state archives and libraries for multi-state demonstrations of shared preservation repositories; $14 million for technical tools and services development for the distributed network of partners and $2 million for developing standards for commercial content that eventually may be deposited through Copyright.

2007
JANUARY

2007
FEBRUARY

$47 million rescinded.

Library recasts NDIIPP strategy in response to rescission

2007
MARCH

2008